HST Tells Newsmen Not To Print Some Secret Matter Even If Cleared Officially

Washington, (AP)—President Truman said yesterday he issued his hotly-disputed security order because a survey showed that "the newspapers and slick magazines" had published 95 per cent of the nation's secret information.

He said this is what he is trying to stop. He disavowed any effort at censorship, said he hates it, and has no desire to curb freedom of the press.

The President defended the order restricting the release of official information in a lengthy statement read to a crowded news conference. The interview lasted half an hour because of an ensuing debate with reporters.

During the question period, Mr. Truman said publishers have a responsibility not to print information that might help an enemy even though it has been cleared by a government agency. This puzzled newsmen, but the President repeated that this was what he meant.

Later, Joseph Short, press secretary to the President, gave a written statement to reporters saying:

"The President has directed me to clarify his views on security information as follows:

"Every citizen—including officials and publishers—has a duty to protect our country.

"Citizens who receive military information for publication from responsible officials qualified to judge the relationship of such information to the national security may rightfully assume that it is safe to publish the information.

"Citizens who receive information from sources not having the necessary responsibilities and qualifications to evaluate such information should, as loyal Americans, exercise the most careful judgment in determining the safety of publishing such information.

"The recent executive order on classified information does not in any way alter the right of citizens to publish anything."

There was no elaboration as to how to judge whether information came from "responsible" officials or those not having qualifications to evaluate information.

Pension Plans Called Greatest Foes Of Longevity

Pittsburgh, (AP)—Two doctors speaking at the 42nd annual session of the Pennsylvania Welfare conference said yesterday that pensions and retirement plans are the greatest foes of a long life.

Dr. Russell E. Teague, State secretary of health, said:

"One of the worst things we have in this country is compulsory retirement at 65, or dangling a retirement policy in front of workers."

Dr. Martin L. Reymert, a conference member, told the delegates:

"We all know too many persons who died at 40 and are buried at 75. The important thing is to keep going," he added.

"The human organism is dependent upon motion and drive. When that is present—under happy conditions—a person doesn't age at

Red Waves Assault Allied Positions In West

Troops Fight Off Chinese Counterblows

U. S. Eighth Army HQS., Korea, Friday, (AP)—Chinese Reds surged down from their hilltop bunkers today and attacked U. S. position in waves on the flaming western front.

The Reds were fighting furiously to crack the Allied line, which was rolled forward as much as four miles in two days of a roaring autumn offensive. The Allies kicked off their drive Wednesday with 100,000 troops from nine nations paced by mammoth British Centurion tanks.

First Cavalry Division troops fought off the Chinese counterattacks throughout the night. But the Reds still were pressing their attack at daybreak. The action raged southwest of Chorwon.

A battalion of 1,000 Reds spearheaded the attack, which began at 2:40 a.m. Thursday. When the Americans beat off the first wave of attackers, the Reds stepped up their strength to 3,000 men.

A general headquarters communiqué said only that Allied troops hurled back several Communist counterattacks.

It said the Allies were continuing their drive on the central and west-central fronts against "considerable enemy resistance."

Troops of the U. S. Third Division, with attached Puerto Rican units, stepped up assaults against a Communist hill position in the same Chorwon area where the Chinese Reds counterattacked.

The division's 15th Regiment twice fought to the fringes of the hill only to be driven back.

"We're in a stiff fight, there's no question about it," said Maj. Gen. Robert Soule, Commander of the Third Division. "We've hit the enemy hard but there is still a tough fight on our hands."

The 100,000-man Allied offensive, spearheaded by the British Commonwealth and U. S. T-26 Divisions, had blasted two deep dents in the Chinese defenses of western Korea yesterday.

Rights Granted To FDR Story

Hyde Park, N. Y., (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced yesterday that movie rights to the life story of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the late president, have been granted to Producer Stanley Kramer.

The disclosure ended five years of speculation over which studio, if any, would get the rights.

Kramer will make the film for Columbia Pictures release. Mrs. Roosevelt will collaborate in its production.

Other details of the transaction, including possible price and whether Mrs. Roosevelt might appear in the picture, were not available.

Kramer says it will be at least three years before the Roosevelt story comes to the screen. Intensive research into the late president's lifetime and deep study of countless history-making documents are involved, the announcement said.

Grants Wage Boost

New York, (AP)—The General Electric Co. granted a guaranteed 3½ cents per hour minimum wage boost and other benefits to 70,000 members of the CIO Electrical Workers Union yesterday.

Soldier Invites Local Citizens To Help Sponsor Party For West German Children

An appeal for help from local citizens on sponsoring a Christmas party at Templehof Air base, Germany for children of West Germany is made in a letter received here this week from Cpl. Clair N. Staples, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Staples, East Stroudsburg RD. 2.

Staples said officers and airmen at Templehof Air base sponsor a club of German youth as part of the U. S. forces' German youth program. It is a year-round program with sports in season, English classes, discussion groups, sewing for girls, etc.

"Like all Americans everywhere, we want to put on a Christmas party not only for our club, but for other children in this area," Staples wrote. He explains that Templehof Air base is located in the heart of the most densely populated area of Berlin, the poorest economically, and this region borders the East sector dominated by Red Russia.

He recalled that last year with the help of public spirited Americans, churches, Boy Scout troops, clubs and others, "we were able to have a mammoth Christmas party and gave out expensive gifts to hundreds of poor children in West and East sectors."

Staples said some 400 kiddies from the East sector "sneaked over for the funfest."

"We made sure they knew that the Americans were behind Santa," the corporal said. "In all, our Christmas parties entertained 4,000 or more, which included

Mount Pocono C. Of C. Joins Fight To Keep DL&W Station Open To All Rail Services

Mount Pocono—A last-ditch fight to block closing of the Lackawanna railroad station here was promised last night by the Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber officials and members met to map their campaign. They claimed the support of scores of local civic groups, business firms, and thousands of borough and area residents served by the rail line.

"We're going to use every angle and means at our command to fight the closing," H. Taylor, chamber treasurer, warned after the meeting. Taylor said there has been wide public indignation at the proposal to close the station.

The chamber group will handle the financial and legal end of the battle, Taylor said.

The citizens' groups and chamber are represented by Borough Solicitor Elmer D. Christine.

Bill Modifying Provisions Of Capehart Amendment On Price Ceilings Passes Senate

Washington, (AP)—The Senate yesterday passed, 49 to 21, a bill modifying the pricing provisions in the economic controls law denounced by President Truman as "the terrible Capehart amendment."

The measure was described by its sponsors as taking a middle-of-the-road position between Mr. Truman's demand for repeal of the amendment, named for Senator Capehart (R-Ind.), and outright retention of it as many Republican senators wanted.

The bill would modify some of the rigid provisions in the Capehart amendment on costs—which must be taken into account by the Office of Price Stabilization in fixing price ceilings.

The vote marked a partial victory for Mr. Truman on one of the changes in the controls law he demanded. This is the first of the changes to be acted on by the Senate.

The Capehart amendment was included in the law extending price, wage and rent controls signed reluctantly by the President July 31.

It permitted sellers to pass on to consumers virtually all cost increases which occurred between the start of the Korean war and last July 26.

The new provision, passed yesterday and sent to the House, directs that price ceilings "reflect some 'necessary and unavoidable' cost increases including 'all labor, material and transportation costs.'"

Area Park Open To Bow-Arrow Deer Hunters

Harrisburg, (AP)—Two State parks, Hickory Run and Cook Forest, were thrown open yesterday for bow and arrow deer hunting this year.

M. F. Drummel, State forests and water secretary, said the action was taken to reduce the number of deer in these areas. Normally hunting is forbidden on State park land.

The bow and arrow season for male deer runs from Oct. 15-27 this year.

Hickory Run park is located in the Pocono Mountains, Carbon county, while Cook Forest park is located along the Clarion river in Forest, Clarion and Jefferson counties.

'Crying' Baby Normal At Birth

Hanford, Calif., (AP)—A healthy, normal baby girl was born yesterday, almost two months after doctors first heard the infant crying inside her mother's body.

Dr. Earl O. Hagen, who delivered the child, said the 5-pound, 14-ounce girl was normal in every respect.

He said the mother, Mrs. Beatrice Avilez, 24-year-old housewife and her baby were doing well.

Attention first centered on Mrs. Avilez last August when her husband, Frank, reported the strange cries to Dr. Hagen.

Dr. Hagen reported he could hear the cries at frequent intervals from as far as five feet away. He had a recording made of the infant's wailing.

Pledge Support To Taft

Washington, (AP)—Thirteen prominent Wisconsin Republicans, many of whom supported Harold E. Stassen in 1948, urged Senator Taft of Ohio yesterday to enter their state's presidential primary next year. They pledged their support if he would.

Jessup Denies Recognition Of Reds Weighed

Washington, (AP)—Ambassador-at-large Philip C. Jessup swore last night that the United States has "never considered the recognition of Communist China."

Jessup, a top adviser to Secretary of State Acheson, also declared:

"The United States has never agreed with any other government that the United States would under any given circumstances recognize Communist China."

"The Department of State has never recommended to the President or to the National Security Council that the United States recognize Communist China."

Moreover, he said, this country has "never expressed its approval or concurrence" with the action taken by Great Britain and other countries in recognizing the Chinese Reds.

Testifying under oath at a Senate inquiry, Jessup declared he himself had a part in formulating the non-recognition policy. The inquiry, by a Senate foreign relations subcommittee, is in connection with President Truman's nomination of Jessup to be a delegate to the United Nations. Among the items being considered are charges by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) that Jessup has an "affinity for Communist causes."

Jessup's statement clashed head-on with earlier testimony by Brig. Gen. Louis J. Fortier, retired, a former Far East intelligence officer, before a Senate internal security subcommittee.

Fortier testified September 20 that Jessup told him in Tokyo in January, 1950, that he expected American recognition of Red China in two or three weeks.

Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania, has also testified Jessup told him during a round table conference at the State department in October, 1949, that he believed those who advocated U. S. recognition of Communist China had the "greater logic" on their side.

Stassen is scheduled to testify today at his own request.

Ferguson Calls For Investigation Of Tax Bureau

Washington, (AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) called yesterday for a full investigation of "scandals" in Federal tax collecting offices as the Senate was informed of "serious irregularities" in the Internal Revenue bureau at Detroit.

The report on the Detroit situation came from Michigan's Democratic Senator Moody, who said some special intelligence agents in the bureau there have engaged in "highly questionable activities."

Ferguson told the Senate irregularities have now been uncovered in San Francisco, Boston, New York and Detroit. He demanded that the newly appointed commissioner of internal revenue, John B. Dunlap, be given a chance to clean out "the bad apples."

Merely allowing officials to resign, or replacing them with others, Ferguson protested, will not cure the evils to the satisfaction of the public.

Gabrielson Interceded For RFC Director

Washington, (AP)—Republican National Chairman Guy Gabrielson testified yesterday he tried to get the presidency of the New York Stock exchange for an RFC director last year. Senator Nixon (R-Calif.) lectured him sharply for the effort.

Gabrielson said he acted in behalf of Harvey Gunderson, a Republican member of the old RFC board, who left it last October 12.

Nixon told his party chief that his sponsorship of Gunderson "certainly creates a bad impression," since Gabrielson's gas refining company then owed the Reconstruction Finance Corp. $18,500,000.

The implication is that "it was an act of impropriety," Nixon added, "if at any time Gunderson was in a position to do anything for the company." Carthage Hydrocol, Inc.

The lecture took place before the Senate's investigations subcommittee, of which Nixon is a member. The committee is beginning an inquiry into Gabrielson's relations with the RFC and other government agencies since he became Republican party chairman.

The Senate group previously recessed an investigation of the relations of William M. Boyle Jr., Democratic national chairman, with the RFC and related matters.

Gable Files Suit For Divorce

Las Vegas, Nev., (AP)—Clark Gable filed suit for divorce yesterday from the former Lady Sylvia Ashley, amid reports she is planning to demand a big settlement from him in California.

Gable wasn't present for the filing, although he already has established his necessary six-weeks residence in Nevada at a Lake Tahoe resort. The complaint was simple, alleging cruelty, saying there are no children and is no community property.

Massadegh To Fly To N. Y. Tomorrow

Tehran, Iran, (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh will fly to New York Sunday with the aim of killing Britain's oil complaint in the Security Council before the council takes up the basic issues, his chief aide said yesterday.

"He is making the trip to show why this oil dispute should not be handled by the Security Council and why there are no grounds for the British complaint," Deputy Premier Hossein Fatemi told newsmen. "If the Security Council enters into a discussion of the essentials of the dispute, the Iranian delegation will not take part."

Debate Pension Bill

Washington, (AP)—The House started debate yesterday on a controversial bill to increase monthly benefit payments to retired railroad workers and to survivors of deceased employees. Passage of the bill is scheduled for today.

Irvin, Koslo Give Underdog Team 5-1 Win

New York, (AP)—The rampant New York Giants, still scoring the odds, pinned no-hit Allie Reynolds' ears back with a barrage of blows and went on to humble the proud Yankees, 5 to 1, behind Dave Koslo's crafty southpaw pitching in yesterday's opening World Series struggle.

The scrapping National league champions, maintaining the impetus of their amazing drive to the pennant, piled into the favored Bombers as though they owned them from the very start, scoring all the runs they needed to win for Koslo in the first inning.

Alvin Dark, captain and shortstop of Leo Durocher's dandies, put the game beyond the reach of the Yankees with a tremendous three-run homer off Reynolds in the sixth. Monte Irvin, slugging leftfielder, tied a series record with four clean hits and electrified the great crowd of 65,673 by stealing home for the Giants' second and winning run in the first frame.

Koslo, handing the American leaguers their first loss in a series opener since 1936, yielded only seven hits to Casey Stengel's warriors and handcuffed them almost completely over the last seven innings. The last finger to stop the Yanks in a first series contest was Carl Hubbell, also of the Giants.

Today's game, also at Yankee Stadium, will pit Larry Jensen, Giant right-hander, against lefty Ed Lopat.

Cloudy weather, with wind and occasional rain, was forecast last night. But the weatherman said the rain would end today with the temperature rising to the mid-70s. It went to 69 yesterday.

Koslo got the starting assignment only because Larry Jensen, righthanded Giants' ace, was forced to work an inning of relief toward the close of Wednesday's sensational victory over Brooklyn in the deciding game of the league playoff. It is doubtful the little lefty ever pitched a finer game in his life than he did yesterday.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cert

One of Victor Borge's night club appearances was marred by one of these infuriating drunks who kept up a running fire of banal taunts from a front-row table. Borge ignored him until he suddenly demanded, "Cut out that classical honey and play The Star Spangled Banner." "I'd be glad to," Borge assured him grimly, "but for that the entire audience must stand up—and I'm sure you couldn't make it."

The crystal chandelier from the Presidential suite of San Francisco's Palace Hotel, under which Warren Harding died, is now the central lighting fixture of the upstairs bathroom in Lucius Boebe and Chuck Clegg's unbelievable Virginia City abode. Its fixtures include a barber chair, three slot machines, a portable bar, and a rack that holds a hundred magazines. Explains Lucius, "The bath was formerly a bedroom and we felt we had to fill it with something."

Hollywood

By Gene Handsaker

Hollywood—"The Blue Veil" returns unashamedly to the tear-jerking qualities that produced such greats as "Seventh Heaven" and "Goodbye, Mr. Chips." The result is one of the year's finest movies.

Sentiment, it reminds us, has been out of fashion in films for the last few years. Cynicism, realism, the smart crack, and toughness have been more in vogue. But folks who aren't afraid to let movies move them are likely to be made a little more loving parents by this one. It glorifies the lifetime of devoted service. Even cynics who see these qualities merely as shrewd boxoffice commodities must agree that they're sure-fire.

The film marks the auspicious debut of Jerry Wald and Norman Krassa as a production team. It stars Jane Wyman in her finest role since 1948's Wald-produced "Johnny Belinda," in which she won the Oscar. She looks like a sure nominee again this time.

She plays a nurse to a succession of lovable babies and children (once such-fire ingredients) in a career reaching from the close of World War I to the present. With a hesitant stoop and plastic wrinkles, Miss Wyman, who can give the ultimate impact to a whispered line of dialogue, gracefully and convincingly makes the transition to old age.

The kids include the newborn son of a lousy corset manufacturer (Charles Laughton), the young son of a woman of wealth (Agnes Moorehead), and the neglected daughter (Natalie Wood).

These Days -- By George E. Sokolsky

The Red Feather

I was politely put off the air last Sunday night to make room for the Red Feather campaign which is, in each locality, our most intensified charity drive. A silence is golden and charity the greatest of all virtues. I contributed silence to charity.

But when the time came that, usually finds me prophesying, like my ancestors, against the evils of our times, I turned on the radio to listen to exhortation, to pleas, to orations and sermons on the virtues of charity. Instead there were bits by Bing Crosby, Dinah Shore, Schnozzola, Durante and others—meritorious bits on their own but unassociated with the subject. Ray Milland did list some of the charities and it all ended with a short and hurried speech by President Truman to the effect that there were some things that the government could not do, which was, for him, an enormous admission.

Sometimes we ask ourselves why it is that Europeans and Asians do not understand us. We have spent billions of dollars trying to tell them about ourselves to little avail. But do we understand ourselves?

Certainly, whoever arranged that Red Feather program does not understand the American people; he does not grasp their seriousness, their generosity, their essential charity and good-will. Here is a people that has established a vast number of hospitals, orphanages, homes for the aged, schools, colleges, universities, every type of social service out of the charity of private individuals, without government assistance or intervention.

And this radio program was the exact place to tell that story, cogently and dramatically. But what does whoever arranged it do? He puts together a typical benefit with big stars doing what they know best how to do, but nary a word about what it means to a people to give charity—to run their own show as God gives them to see and do the right.

For charity is of the same emotional and spiritual fabric as liberty. Taxes are something altogether different. Taxes are enforced. They are taken from us. We are neither the judges of the amount nor of the time of giving.

We are taxed for things that we believe in and things that we oppose. We are taxed for good management as we are taxed for waste and profligacy.

Charity is voluntary and is of the heart. Look about your own city and see the wonderful institutions that are the blossoms of a deep emotion, a mark of love for a beloved father, a mark of love for a son shot down in war, an act of devotion by a handful of women, a cause nurtured with care and patience by a few devoted persons many of whom could hardly afford the money or time they gave to it.

This is the spiritual expression of a man in good works, in inspired service to his fellows. Few of America's magnificent charities or even educational institutions started as big projects. Most of them are by-products of church work. Such universities as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, to mention only examples, were founded really as church schools. Most of our great hospitals and medical centers—certainly the older ones—were founded as adjuncts to churches.

Yet, not one word was said of all this on the Red Feather program which used the time of the networks simultaneously. In fact, nothing of any significance was said. The voice of America expressed itself in doggerel and twaddle. We are silent about our virtues not because of modesty but because, taking everything for granted, we no longer recognize our virtues.

For we have virtues and we need a civilization and we need to speak of it constantly and repetitively that our young people may never forget it. In the American civilization, charity is not only a moral obligation, but it is a witnessing that free men can perform service to mankind which in other civilizations remain a government promise but here are achievements on a grand scale.

The community chest is the joining together of men of different faiths, of numerous varieties of national and racial origin into the unity of charity. It is proof that the American individual, while retaining his peculiarities, can, in freedom, unite with others for good purposes.

We do not need to justify our speaking of this or our asking for charity by the sugar coating of comedy or trivial jazz. It should in this country speak for itself in the dignity which charity showers on the giver and acceptor alike.

Washington Report

By Fulton Lewis Jr.

Washington—The South is not likely to accept Chief Justice Fred Vinson as a Democratic presidential nominee if President Truman picks a Calvin Coolidge on the party.

The south is sore at Mr. Truman—very sore. It's also sore at the entire Truman wing of the Democratic party. An analysis of efforts by Senator Karl Mundt, Republican of South Dakota, to effect a GOP-Southern coalition, and the thinking of southern politicians on the subject, makes this clear. Merely substituting Vinson for Mr. Truman will not appease the south.

Southern politicians know that the rank and file of the Democratic party will have little to say about who is nominated at the Democratic convention. Democratic national committee chairman William Boyle and company will do the selecting—and it will be President Truman only if they are convinced he can win.

Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, a leader in the southern revolt, has bypassed in his public utterances the question of whether Mr. Truman should or should not be the nominee. He finds it unnecessary to remind the south of its distaste for the faction now in power. It is assumed that the south will oppose Mr. Truman or anyone named in his place who supports the platform and legislative program placed before the convention by the President or his henchmen.

The south is demanding restoration of the two-thirds rule in the national conventions, re-dedication of the Democratic party to state's rights, and a political platform devoted to socialistic measures. By Socialism, the south means most of the legislative proposals put forth by the President and his supporters.

Senator Byrd is convinced the south can put a stop to the drift to Socialism. He is convinced the south can direct renewed national attention to the preservation of constitutional government, and that the south can re-establish a free economy in the U. S. if it assumed political leadership.

Senator Mundt holds the same views but believes this can best be accomplished by a coalition of the south and the GOP. The national coalition committee was formed in an effort to test this theory in practical politics. Its avowed aim is to:

"Unify, in practical political effort, the supporters of constitutional government and a free economy, including Republicans and old-line Democrats, to stop and reverse the Socialistic trend by creating a coalition in support of a single ticket in the next presidential election."

The likelihood of a single presidential election ticket agreed to by Republicans and old-line Democrats is slim. Support by of a jazzy showgirl, excellently played by Joan Blondell. The top-notch cast includes Richard Carlson as a handsome tutor whom Jane almost marries, Audrey Totter, as a mother who abandons her son, and Cyril Cusack, as Jane's long-time friend who runs a toy shop.

This is one you should see. Take several hankies; and if you have to be caught weeping sit where it's dark.

"Come Fill the Cup" is another, 100-proof slug of tough, swagging Jimmy Cagney. This time he's an alcoholic newspaperman who swears off the stuff with the help of another reformed lush (James Gleason). Getting back the job from which he's been fired, he's assigned by his publisher (Raymond Massey) to help the latter's protégé out of the woods of chronic drunkenness. This character, well-played by Gig Young, is now married to Cagney's old sweetheart (Phyllis Thaxter). Warner Brothers pour too tall a drink—the film is nearly two hours long—but Cagney fans should find the tang satisfactory.

Walter Winchell on Broadway

The Playoff, Polo Grounds

The manifold meanings of the national pastime are the source of its magical lure. It is economic and artistic, emotional and spiritual, philosophical and psychological.

Baseball is a commercial enterprise for players, yet it frequently becomes a brilliant poetic drama for sports writers. The enthusiasm it generates has offered a more effective emotional therapy than psychiatry. And for many Americans it represents an act of faith: Catastrophic changes sweeping the world never disturb the changeless pattern of the game. It is the essence of joyous normalcy. The ball park becomes an island of innocent excitement in a world of wild despair. It is the sunny fortress of youthful memories amidst the threat of a dark future.

The walls enclosing the field temporarily block the horizons of a civilization flashing with perilsous lightning. Thus the game becomes a symbol of the mainstream of life: Hope. For the national pastime is an expression of a national aspiration—the pursuit of happiness.

The dramatic aspects of the game have been enhanced by a natural actor. Leo Durocher, of course. His explosive portrayals of injured innocence in disputes with umpires are in the grand Barrymore tradition. Moreover, Leo has a flair for comedy. Durocher was once ordered to return to the bench after a bitter protest. Before stepping into the dugout, Leo turned toward the arbiter and thumbed his nose. The ump rushed over and roared: "Did you thumb your nose at me?" "You made the other decisions," Leo flipped. "Make this one."

Another illustration of jolly throat-cutting involved umpire George Moriarty. After he had called a strike on the batter, the player suddenly inquired how he spelled his name. The stunned ump spelled: "M-a-r-i-a-r-i-y." The batter delivered the crusher. "Just as I thought. One eye!"

Then there's the manager who coined the classic: "They put marks on umpires to keep them from biting the players?"

The most famous ump was the late Bill Klem. A man of great dignity, he carried on the chores with serene majesty. Bill once noted correctly that the structure of professional baseball is based on the honesty of arbiters. With-the south of a GOP presidential ticket acceptable to southern views is more probable. Almost certain is a southern revolt against the Truman Democratic party, including southern refusal to have anything to do with the Democratic national convention, so long as Boyle and company retain control.

Personal scandals involving huge legal fees and influence peddling have already weakened Boyle. He is being assailed from another angle as well. Left wing and liberal spokesmen and their publicists are increasing their attacks on Boyle and Mr. Truman. They fear a Democratic defeat on the basis of administration scandals, and are now raising their voices against the President and Boyle. Some have begun to point out the evils of "Trumanism." They will, if they continue their distastes for the President and Boyle, join forces under the banner of Americans for Democratic action.

The ADA was a strong force in the 1948 convention. If fearful enough over a Republican victory in 1952 the ADA will abandon the President and Boyle and battle to grab control of the party. If it wins, Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the U. S. Supreme Court probably will be the candidate, not Chief Justice Vinson.

out that essential quality the game couldn't exist. Klem frequently sighed: "This is a tough job, but you can't beat the hours."

When the occasion demanded Bill could hold his own in any word-war. After one World Series a player sent a unique protest to the Baseball Commissioner. He charged Umpire Klem with using offensive language!

The current baseball frenzy dominates front pages. Momentous political and diplomatic events have become insignificant—temporarily. It recalls the time a World Series postponed a revolution: Before launching an uprising in Mexico, bandit Pancho Villa called in reporters and announced the date for his planned attack. Aware that Villa was headline-happy, AP correspondent Norman Walker reminded him that the revolt would not attract page-one attention in U. S. dailies—since a World Series was starting at the same time. P. S.—Villa postponed the revolution for 7 days.

Looking at Life

By Erich Brandeis

Brandeis

Everybody is trying to get in to the act, as Jimmy Durante says. Here is a letter that appeared in Bridgeport, Conn. Telegram.

"Driving my little old Ford to the parking place at the Stratfield Hotel, while I was called for an important conference with other business executives, I noticed seven brand new Cadillacs (1951) parked in chummy proximity.

"What's this?" I asked the parking man.

"Oh, don't you know the Connecticut Federation of Labor is holding its convention in the hotel."

By the way, talking of unions, the warm diggers of Ottawa, Can., have gone on strike.

The diggers, who prowl golf courses after dark for the night crawlers, have struck for higher wages.

They normally receive $3 per 1000 worms. They now want $8 per thousand.

I guess if prices keep on going up we may all have to follow the example of a Hackensack millionaire.

He has just been adopted by his 71-year-old landlady.

"I never had a son," she said. "But I have one now."

She has.

Here is another way to get free room and board.

Lorenzo L. Smith, of Stamford, Conn., was about to be discharged from the Fairfield County Jail. He had just finished a four months' sentence.

There was $7 in the jail safe which belonged to him. However, the safe was closed and the deputy jailer told him he would have to come back at 10:30 when the chief deputy, who knew the combination, would be in.

Smith said he would wait. The jailer said he couldn't.

Smith—who had served his time for assault and mayhem—punched the jailer.

He was promptly re-arrested and put back in the same cell where he had just finished his sentence.

This time the charge is breach of the peace.

The court also ordered a psychiatric examination.

Psychiatric examinations have become all the rage.

Whenever a fellow commits a crime nowadays his lawyer says he was "temporarily insane."

Sometimes I wonder how many perfectly sane people are in mental institutions, and how many crazy people are running around free.

And where is the border line between sanity and insanity?

We have a saying in our profession: "You don't have to be crazy to be a newspaperman, but it helps a lot."

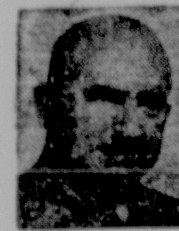

Being crazy is something like congressional immunity.

In either case you can get by with murder.

Incidentally, I think this present Congress just about holds a record for the large number of investigations it has conducted and for the small number of laws it has passed.

However, I am now getting in to politics.

Which MAY call for a psychiatric examination or a senate investigation.

The Psychopathic Patient

"Where are we now? ... What day and what week? ... How goes the battle? ... And which battle? ... Who? ... Are you positive?" called the pop-eyed patient in the psychopathic ward.

"Take it easy," urged the puzzled doctor.

"No cease fire yet! ... No armistice! ... And after all this carnage and chaos! ... Get me Trygve Lie!" demanded the patient.

"Korea, Iran or the Argentine?" the doctor asked the nurse.

"They said there wouldn't be a third world war!" interrupted the patient. "Where's Ernie Grose? ... Where's Mrs. Roosevelt? ... The U. N. has got to step in NOW and settle everything."

"Brooklyn, Manhattan and the Bronx," said the nurse, answering the doctor's query. "He's a baseball fan. Been following all the playoffs for a week and now he's in the world series!"

"Ah, I see," said the medico. "Just another case of Playoffitis complicated by a bad attack of Secesism. It's all over the nation. I just left a case where the patient slugged a nurse. Claimed she had cut the game by not sliding into third."

"Take out Mossadegh, the bum can't pitch! ... Put in Three-fingered Jebb," yelled the patient who hadn't been sticking to the baseball news exclusively. "Where is Mohammed Reynolds? How about Sir Gladwyn Raschi? ... Who's playing anyhow and have you got photostatics to prove it?"

"Relax," urged the doctor.

"I like the Dodgers, I mean the Giants. ... No, the Dodgers. ... What am I saying? ... Get me copy of 'Who's Who in the 1951 World Series' ... And wire me confirmation ... Is there a Lippy Dressen in the house? ... Where's Casey Durocher? ... Or vice versa? ... Listen, nurse!"

"Yes, what is it?" asked the nurse.

"Is my HEAD on straight?" "Approximately," she smiled.

"Try to be back and do as the doctor says."

"What doctor? ... He's batting out of turn! ... Nurse, I'm taking you over! ... You're a right-hander! ... I need a southpaw in this situation!"

"Look, my good man," began the doctor.

"You're out!" roared the patient. "Clear the Brooklyn Giant—Yankee—Iran—Kaesong—bunch! ... Where am I now and is that by daylight saving or in our money? ... Thirty days hath September, April, Wooding and Casey Stengel. ... Nurse, you have two and three on you and had better hit the next one!"

"He's got a temperature of 103," said the doctor.

"Yeah, cried the patient, "but it ain't good enough to win ... somebody is apt to tie it up even this late ... Ouch! Ooh-h-h-h!"

"You seem to have a lot of gas in right field," said the doctor.

"I don't like your pulse ... In a case like this, maybe I'd better put in a new pulse, the young one we got from the farm club in August ... And your blood pressure has gone from 134 to second place in today's line-up."

It was now plain the doctor had been following the 1951 baseball situation too.

"Come on, get in here with me!" demanded the patient.

"Why not?" agreed the sawbones, ordering the nurse to cancel any instructions about pills and just bring in a catcher's mask, a new ball and a resin bag.

There are three soft hats in New York upon which the happiness and despair of a good many people depended during the series and the playoffs. Lost, mislead or stolen, they would have meant disaster. They were the bonnets of Frank, Joe and Harry Stevens, ball-park caterers. Frank's fell off the other day and we saw it so full of notes, cards and general memoranda that it looked like a silk-lined filing cabinet. "What goes?" we asked. "Reminders to take care of late applicants for series tickets!" he replied.

Would you say Harry Gross was "the Grossest with the mostest on the bulls?" ... Bob Christenberry, proprietor of the Astor, is the new head of boxing, and we hear that a guest called the desk the other day and demanded, "Send up the proprietor. The wife and I are having a fight and I want everything according to the rules." ... A self-winding watch has been turned out for automobiles with a guarantee to tell the right time. That's odd. We felt certain there was an understanding whereby nothing but defective clocks were sold to automobile makers.

Senator Kefauver once again urges that the legal profession do something about the criminal lawyers who specialize in defending mobsters, blueprint their routines and are really partners in the operation. Shush, Estes can't you understand the Bar Association wants to sleep?

Eternal Vigilance

No better motto could have been contrived for the supreme headquarters of General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower than the famous declaration of John Philpot Curran: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

This motto, emblazoned on the flag to be flown at Eisenhower's headquarters near Paris, and worn by the members of his headquarters staff as a patch, surrounds the central grouping of drawn swords and olive leaves.

The spirit of the banner is obvious: defenders of freedom are the nations allied under the American leader's command, but they stand ready to do battle only if the offer of peace is cast aside.

There could have been no better choice than the ringing motto as finally offered by an unidentified individual, and promptly approved and adopted for the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Forces in Europe.

Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. How miserably have we failed to recognize this inherent truth in the troubled years since the turn of the century, when twice we have become embroiled in major wars. Unnumbered young men have died because of the callous incompetence of all of us, so obvious in our refusal to face realities.

Let the new motto of General Eisenhower's headquarters be instilled in the minds of everyone. Let our vigilance be eternal, lest we lose that priceless heritage of our forefathers.

Soft Assignment

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor, assembled in San Francisco, have declared 19 members of the Senate to be "shortsighted and anti-labor."

It has marked them for defeat in the 1952 elections.

Now all the AFL leaders have to do is to convince a majority of the voters in California, Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

No. 1 Watchdog

Nobody needs a sharp-eyed watchdog looking over his shoulders more than the average government spender. And that goes for the military—perhaps especially for the military.

For military spending makes up the overwhelming proportion of the Federal budget.

The Senate Subcommittee on Preparedness, which already has done useful work in pin-pointing weaknesses in the defense program, now has taken on the dollar-watching assignment. To head up the job, the committee has named Downey Rice.

Mr. Rice is an experienced FBI agent, a former assistant U.S. Attorney and until recently a top man on the staff of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee. He is a first class investigator.

The huge defense spending program, as Chairman Lyndon Johnson of the Senate committee says, "is bound to attract chiselers, spendthrifts, grafters and blue sky artists willing to profit from their country's dire need."

Dollars unnecessarily spent are as treacherously lost as dollars stolen. As a spotter of waste, Mr. Rice can be expected to search as industriously for needless spending as for corrupt spending.

This extraordinary outpouring of the nation's resources is imperative to the country's security. It is just as imperative that no single dollar be frittered away.

More than 95 per cent of Wisconsin's corn acreage was planted with hybrid seed corn in 1948. This proportion has since increased.

Fire Companies Complete Arrangements For Demonstration

Three Groups To Participate Monday Night

Spectators will be urged to "stick around" instead of to "keep moving" Monday when the alarm sounds and fire trucks roll in East Stroudsburg.

The "fire" will be a demonstration by fire companies of Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Stroud township, part of the observance of Fire Prevention week.

It will be the biggest massing of fire equipment since the Pennsylvania hotel fire several years ago, when companies of both boroughs went into action.

Stroud township fire companies were not then in existence.

The imaginary fire will be at 7 p. m. at the Hotel Fenner and Silverman buildings at Washington and Crystal Sts. in East Stroudsburg.

With the first sounding of the alarm, the East Stroudsburg Reo booster truck will whip into action with its 100-gallon-a-minute pump and 300-gallon tank, and simulate laying of hose lines from the nearby railroad station hydrant.

The 750-gallon-a-minute pump with 300-gallon tank will follow suit at the hydrant in front of the Henry building on Washington St., and bring in inhalator and masks.

The 1000-gallon-a-minute pump will roll up Washington St. and drop a line at the railroad hydrant too.

The hook-and-ladder truck will set up to cover each floor, with the aerial ladder, handling top floor and roof. Gas masks and stretchers will be taken off and set up "if needed." The lighting plant will be put in operation and a cable with 500-watt light taken to the roof.

The hose truck will simulate laying of hose too, but with the theoretical fire still out of control at 7:10 p. m. the Stroudsburg and Stroud township fire departments will be called in.

With the east borough's Acme Hose Co. No. 1 handling the principal "blaze," Stroudsburg's Phoenix Co. No. 2 and Chemical Co. No. 1, and the Stroud township companies will start arriving at 7:15 p. m.

Additional hook-and-ladders, booster trucks and other pieces of rolling equipment will connect to a hydrant in front of the East Stroudsburg National Bank, and ladder the Silverman building from first floor to roof. Additional lighting plants will be set up and carried to rooftops. More lines of hose will be unreeled and run toward the "burning" buildings.

Throughout the demonstration spectators will get a step-by-step explanation of what is being done and why, over a P. A. system.

Governor Hasn't Abandoned Hope For State Income Tax

Harrisburg, Pa.—Gov. John S. Fine indicated yesterday that he has not abandoned hope for final passage of the long-disputed State income tax.

"Where there is life there is hope," the Governor told a news conference.

He made the statement in answer to a question as to whether he felt there was a chance that the bitterly-contested levy might eventually gain approval by the Legislature.

The one-half of one per cent levy, sought by the Governor to fill a $120,000,000 gap in his State budget, has been the subject of a marathon tax battle in the General Assembly. A group of Republican senators has led opposition against it.

Although Fine stressed that he still favors the income tax, he told reporters he will settle for any tax program which the Legislature sees fit to pass at this late date.

"I need money to operate the State government, and I need it badly," he declared.

Although he declined direct comment on the issue, the Governor hinted that he may be forced to call a special session of the Legislature next January if the assembly adjourns finally on December 22 without passing a tax program.

Grace Laymen To Attend Session
Stinson Danneker, John A. Wagner, Joseph T. Pierce and John H. Kunkle will accompany Rev. William F. Wunder to the "Turn-in-the-Road" conference on Lutheran World Action at Muhlenberg College tonight. The conference will convene at 6:30 with a fellowship dinner in the college refectory. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the ULCA will be the principle speaker. The $900 quota for Grace church had been pledged in full and the total amount is expected to be realized before the Christmas season. The quota assigned Grace Lutheran church for Lutheran World Action was 100 per cent subscribed to in 1950.

Funeral services were held at 2 p. m. yesterday in the William E. Thomas funeral home, Stroudsburg, for Willis W. Snyder, who died recently in the Lebanon Veterans hospital.

Rev. William Wunder, Grace Lutheran church, officiated. Interment was made in Prospect cemetery. Monroe County Memorial committee conducted military services at the grave.

Palbearers were Bernie Whitman, Russell Hoffman, William Loder, George Mosher, Donald Clifton and Conrad Van Sickle.

Music May Aid Psychiatrists In Treating Mental Cases, Studies By Professor Hint

By Lorne S. Waddell
Central Press Correspondent
Syracuse, N. Y. — Recorded music may be just what the doctor ordered for the treatment of mental cases, according to studies made here recently by a music professor.

Nonsensical as they may sound, such tunes as Abba Dabba Honey-moon, and newest be-hop releases may well provide the first real tawhole for a psychiatrist treating a Korean battle casualty or a mental patient in the 'teen-age bracket.

If you have ever switched your radio to another station because a piece of music made you feel lousy, you are aware of the effect music can have on mood. By channeling this mood influence into the field of medicine, psychiatrists already have found that music may help in the diagnosis and relief of mental disorders.

During three years of research, Dr. Alexander Capurso of Syracuse University's School of music observed that the human response to a musical selection range from sheer elation and vigorous stimulation to a sudden plunge into the depths of depression.

Here lies the value of music as a "medicine." A musical "prescription" can both soothe and stimulate. Depending upon the composition selected for the "music diet" and the mood of the patient when he hears each piece.

Before real or fancied mental patients rush to the local record shop intent on buying albums of "stimulation" or "sedative" music as they would aspirin tablets, Dr. Capurso warns that these "diets" are no more transferable from person to person than a wooden leg.

"They are, in a way, musical bi-focals," he says. "One set of selections has one effect, others achieve something else. The tune which relaxes one man may make his neighbor want to throw china. Like bi-focal glasses, however, they must be prescribed only after professional examination and fitted only by a competent doctor."

Even if they could be purchased over the counter like patent medicines, Dr. Capurso points out that "special albums" would be more beneficial than the so-called "reading spectacles" sold in five-and-ten-cent stores.

When he was invited to tackle the project in 1948 under a Music Research Foundation grant, the Syracuse professor assembled a list of 1,227 recorded selections suggested by music experts.

Through standardized psychological testing methods, he determined not only what mood each composition suggested to the individual but how strong the suggestion was.

Screening his original list down to convenient working library of 105 selections, he played his records for nearly 1,100 students at Syracuse and the University of Kentucky. From his group of records he eliminated 40, leaving him with a key set of 65 selections.

On a special test sheet, the human guinea pigs were given seven mood categories to choose from in rating each selection.

These included (1) happy, gay, joyous, stimulating or triumphant; (2) soothing or relaxing; (3) agitating, restless or irritating; (4) nostalgic, sentimental or meditative; (5) prayerful or reverent; (6) sad, melancholy, grieving, depressing or lonely; and (7) eerie, weird or grotesque.

Besides noting the mood suggested by each selection, students indicated the extent to which they felt the mood, recording the degree on a 0 to 5 scale with 5 as the maximum intensity.

Radio now is providing additional data for the Syracuse professor. After a recent address on the subject of music therapy at the New York Academy of Medicine, a representative of a Manhattan radio station volunteered to aid in the studies by playing special music and inviting listeners to register their reactions by mail.

Dr. Capurso prepared a list of recordings for the station and added a set of questions designed to encourage audience response. Results are being checked against the findings of his student tests.

The professor visualizes music as an instrument in the treatment and rehabilitation of mental patients in veterans hospitals and has done some work in this field at one hospital in upstate New York.

The idea of using music as an adjunct to medicine is far from a prophetic dream, Dr. Capurso points out. Many of the musical compositions on his list were employed with success in an Army hospital.

During World War II, the Music Research Foundation was authorized to work with selected patients at Walter Reed General hospital in Washington, D. C.

Obtaining objective data under clinically controlled conditions in a crowded wartime hospital proved impossible. Under experimental conditions, however, Walter Reed staff psychiatrists found that three out of four mental patients responded favorably to selected music.

Chief Of Korean Mission To U. N. First Speaker On Dutch Treat Club Program

"Abandonment of the thirty million Koreans to their merciless Communist enemies would not only be a betrayal of the trust which my people have placed in their allegiance with world democracy; it would also greatly undermine the confidence of other endangered peoples everywhere in the world."

These are the words of Col. Ben C. Limb, chief of the Korean Mission to the United Nations and former foreign minister of the Republic of Korea, who will appear here on Thursday, October 11, at the Penn-Strout hotel.

J. Albert Groner, president of the Dutch Treat club said last night that a few memberships are still available before the club closes its membership lists on a season of programs rated the best every to be arranged. They may be obtained by contacting Mr. Groner or Mrs. Gilbert Barthold.

In a recent attack on the "total disregard for international law and decency which is manifest in the aggression of the Chinese Communists" on his native land, Colonel Limb warned: "If abandonment is to be the fate of such a people as the Koreans, who have bravely thrown themselves wholeheartedly into the struggle for freedom, how can other exposed peoples dare risk such a fate for themselves? Is there not the gravest of dangers that other peoples will conclude it may be better to surrender at once and take their chances with the Communists rather than first to struggle, then be left to face their fate alone?"

American-educated Colonel Limb is a significant figure on today's international scene. His is the official voice in the councils of the United Nations, the voice of a brave people crushed in the vise of Communist aggression. Colonel Limb has long been in the forefront of his country's battle for independence. He took an active part in the organization of the Korean revolt against Japan in 1919, serving as Syngman Rhee's aide. When Dr. Rhee was elected president of the provisional government of the Korean Republic in exile at Shanghai, Colonel Limb began a 30-year-long tenure as private secretary to President Rhee.

The Youth Fellowship will hold their third annual County sale Tuesday evening, October 23, in the Guild Hall.

The fall meeting of East Pennsylvania Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed church will be held October 17 in the Plainfield church near Wind Gap.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Shupp, of Gilbert, announce the marriage of their son, Clark Shupp, to Miss Louise Duzior, of Texas. The wedding took place in Hawaii.

Chest Report Meeting Set For Oct. 10

The first Community Chest campaign report meeting will be held Wednesday, October 10 at 6:30 p. m. in the Penn-Stroud hotel. It had been scheduled for tonight.

Walter Peeney, last year's campaign manager, said the major reason for making the dinner-report meeting October 10, is to allow every person who solicited funds for the campaign to arrange to be present.

The dinner is being given without cost to the chest or to anyone attending by Gerald P. O'Neill, owner of the Penn-Stroud.

Mr. Peeney emphasized that the dinner and meeting is being staged particularly for "the workers." He added that they may make their reservations with their team or plant captains, or by calling Community Chest, 2231, not later than 5 p. m. Monday.

Stroudsburg High Students Acquaint Rotary Club With Activities, Duties Of Council

Stroudsburg High school's student council, its role in conduct of the high school and the lessons in self-government it teaches were described yesterday to the Stroudsburg Rotary club.

Walter Schlough was program chairman. Earl Groner, superintendent of schools, introduced the president of the council, Peter Kiefer, who presented his colleagues from the council.

Kiefer prefaced these introductions with a brief historical background of the council. He said it started first in Junior High, seventh, eighth and ninth grades, the first year being devoted to perfecting a constitution.

In 1947 the Senior High started a council using the Junior constitution as a pattern before it began functioning in 1948.

Among other things the council sponsors dances, amateur shows, relieves teachers of various duties, etc. Kiefer said the council is now affiliated with National Association of Student Councils.

Present to describe various phases of council work were Michael Shariot, Patty Darling, Marilyn Learn, Diane Lee and Jack Hitt.

Chief Warrant Officer H. O. Hanshaw discusses Army career fields with Pvt. John W. Berry (right), Army's seventh-grader "brain trust."

Only A Seventh Grader But Scores High In Army Tests

By Henry Lesane
(Central Press Correspondent)

Columbia, S. C.—Geniuses don't always go to college or even get into high school. A case in point is that of a 22-year-old textile worker who finished only the seventh grade at school but turned out to be a one-man "brain-trust" when he stood the aptitude tests at Fort Jackson here.

Reception center officials were astounded when the recruit, Pvt. John W. Berry of Alabama City, Ala., averaged 17 to 22 points higher than college graduates passing through the large Army center. He was working as a textile operative in his home town when inducted.

Pvt. Berry has no explanation for his wide range of academic and specialized knowledge except that he has always liked to read everything of interest that he could get his hands on—newspapers, magazines, fiction, biography, history—and he seems to retain about everything he reads. He has other hobbies, too, such as photography and model railroad-ing.

On the whole range of 10 tests Pvt. Berry averaged 142 points with no grade lower than 136. Officials at the reception center say that less than one per cent of the tens of thousands tested there have averaged 130 or better.

The testing branch estimates that only five per cent of the college graduates processed at Fort Jackson have averaged 130 in their aptitude area dealing with their specialized field, and only 120-125 for their overall score.

The grammar school prodigy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Berry of Alabama City. He made good marks during his abbreviated schooling. After he got through the seventh grade, however, he dropped out of school and took a newspaper carrier job. Then he went to work in the textile mill.

When going to school he did a lot of outside reading. Since leaving school he's averaged reading at least one book a week. He doesn't know why he dropped out of school. He "just did." Later the fact that he had become several years older than seventh graders deterred him from re-entering.

"The remarkable thing about Pvt. Berry's high scores," says Chief Warrant Officer H. C. Hanshaw of the reception center, "is their consistency. He did as well in the specialized fields such as radio, automotive and shop mechanics as he did in the purely academic fields."

"Even the college man," says Hanshaw, "will fall down on the specialized fields unless he majored in one of them at college or has had a great deal of practical experience."

Three Non-Support Cases Come Before County Court Here For Final Disposition

Three cases involving charges of non-support were disposed of yesterday by President Judge Fred W. Davis in Monroe county court.

Daniel Lesh, who gave his address as 384 Broadhead Ave., East Stroudsburg, was ordered to pay $10 a week to the support of his children. Lesh also was charged to pay prosecution costs. Original hearing on the charge was September 26, with the complaint made by Lesh's divorced wife, Josephine, East Stroudsburg.

Lorenzo Miller, East Stroudsburg, was purged by Judge Davis of contempt of court on condition he pay prosecution costs within a month. Miller was instructed he must also pay the $20 a week support ordered by the court last summer.

District Attorney Detleff A. Hansen said Miller had been in jail three months on a contempt citation made after he failed to keep up support payments to his family.

Miller told Judge Davis, "I figured out for myself it's better for me to work and pay that than sit over there (in the county jail)."

In the third case, involving Joseph F. Cramer, East Stroudsburg, Judge Davis pointed out a recent legislature act permits the court to

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headache and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. ## Helen Hess Is Bride Of Pfc. Dunlap

Swiftwater—Miss Helen Hess, daughter of Fred Hess, Woodland Road, and Mrs. John Mondeau, of Easton, became the bride of Pfc. Albert Dunlap, son of Mrs. Louise Dunlap Hess of Woodland Road, and the late David Dunlap, at the Swiftwater Methodist church at 5 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 30.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Whitaker, with Mrs. Whitaker at the organ. The bridal couple were attended by Miss Betty Whitmore of Stroudsburg RD 3, as maid of honor, and David Dunlap, brother of the groom as best man. The church was decorated with bouquets of fall flowers.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of aqua taffeta with net, fashioned with a Peter-Pan collar, with black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Her maid of honor wore a brown satin print, and a corsage of orange desire roses.

After the ceremony the wedding party enjoyed a dinner at The Gardens in Delaware Water Gap. A reception was held for them on Monday night at Chestnut Grove, East Swiftwater, with about 40 guests present.

The bride attended Easton High school, and is now employed at Strickland's Mountain Inn. The bridegroom has been in the Army 1½ years, having trained at Fort Knox, Kentucky, and was at the front in Korea three months. While there engaged in combat, he was wounded through the foot, and spent his convalescence at Valley Forge Army hospital from January to May of this year. He is stationed at Indiantown Gap, where he will return this week.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

The Community Chest is rolling along—but how about you? Have you sent in your contribution yet or are you waiting for some weary canvasser to come and coax you?

I just wish everybody could sit in on the board meetings of the ten agencies who will benefit, and listen to the reports. Hear how the board has to twist and turn and connive to make your community chest dollar stretch to meet the needs.

Wish you could hear the reports of the time given, so freely and without measure, by the volunteers who sit on the boards, who work on the committees, who lead the Girl Scout troops, and cart the Sunbeams, and instruct the Boy Scouts and—well, we could go on through seven more "ands".

Those hours of volunteer help add up to days and weeks of time without price. Oh the volunteers are the life-blood of the agencies, all right, but it takes money to prime the old pump to keep them functioning.

And that's where we come in—or should.

WILLING HANDS of volunteers lay the floor of the new Girl Scout camp rising on Mosier's Knob (top) while the women keep the coffee hot and the sandwiches coming, and the Girl Scouts and their leaders wield the paint brushes for the roof panels (bottom). The leaders are enlisting the help of their husbands and the Girl Scouts of their fathers to complete the building before cold weather sets in. Any volunteers wishing to serve may get full information from Mrs. William G. Miller, camp chairman, or Harvey Huffman, who is in charge of construction.

Girl Scout Camp Will Be Dedicated During G. S. Week

The dedication of the new Girl Scout camp, Camp Lloyd Treible, will be the climax of the local celebration of National Girl Scout week, it was decided at the meeting of the Girl Scout Council of Monroe county held last night at the Bartonville hotel.

Mrs. Harold C. Edwards, president of the executive board, and Mrs. Harland Bard, president of the Leader's Association, presided over different sections of the meeting.

Mrs. Roger Acker, chairman of leadership training, announced that the first training course for leaders, who are required to take 16 hours of training each year, would be held October 11 at the Girl Scout House from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. Emphasis during the training sessions will be on different phases of Scouting each meeting. Camp craft, program planning, arts and crafts, budgeting and troop records, songs and games are among the topics to be considered.

Dr. Madelon Powers, Juliette Low chairman, asked each leader to send the names of two girls who will represent their troop on the Juliette Low committee.

Mrs. Stanley Hartman, editor of the Newshag, asked that all news concerning the troops be in her hands by the last Tuesday of the month.

Mrs. William G. Miller, camp committee chairman, reported the programs on the Girl Scout camp, and asked for more volunteers on Saturdays and Sundays to speed the work of laying the floors so that the building could be under roof by cold weather.

Mrs. Edwards gave a financial report of the camp expenses with a vote of thanks going to the Kiwanis club for the $500 they had donated for material, and to the men who had donated equipment and their services to advance the work of the camp. The Leader's Association turned over additional funds to be used for labor costs, not suitable for volunteer labor.

Mrs. Hazel West for the Leader's Association turned over a check for $186 to Horace Westbrook, treasurer, to be used to pay off indebtedness on the Girl Scout House. The money was raised by the leaders through their recent rummage sale. The Girl Scout House has recently been painted, it was reported and a vote of thanks was given Mr. Weiler, the painter.

In the discussion of National Girl Scout Week, which will be observed October 28 through November 3, it was decided to have the dedication of the camp as the highlight of the week. Plans for the dedication will be made by Edwards and Mrs. Camille Harvey, won much favorable comment, and will be included in the regional report to national.

Mrs. William G. Miller, county chairman of the camp committee, has released the names of firms and individuals who have rallied to the support of the building program. With the Kiwanis club's gift of $500 for materials as a starter, the work has been aided by many persons.

Gershom Litts leveled the ground for the building and playground. Pardee Place dug the foundations, and A. L. Rake donated the floor joists, which were hauled by his son, W. A. R. Rake.

Sand was donated by Miss Mattie Lesoine of Marshall's Creek, and hauled by Lloyd Smith. Harvey Huffman is in charge of the construction.

Mrs. Evelyn Doll contributed an outbuilding, hauled to the site by Tommy Batchelor, and C. W. Munsell contributed paint for the roof. ## Redistricting Bill Rejected By Governor Harrisburg (AP) — Gov. John S. Fine injected the income tax controversy into a veiled attack yesterday on a Senate bill to reapportion Pennsylvania's congressional districts.

He described the measure as "a wailing foundling" that was on his doorstep upon his return Wednesday night from the governors' conference at Gatlinburg, Tenn.

"It is Senator Diehm's bill and has, I assure, the full support of all those Republicans with whom he is associated in fighting the income tax measure," he told a news conference. "I refuse to adopt it."

He referred to Chairman G. Graybill Diehm (R-Lancaster) of the Senate Reapportionment committee who is one of 11 GOP senators opposed to enactment of the one-half of one per cent income levy proposed by Fine.

Pennsylvania must reduce its congressional delegation from 33 to 30 to conform with population changes uncovered by the 1950 census.

Fine said Diehm has consulted him about the reapportionment bill, adding:

"I did not approve the measure then and do not now approve it."

He said neither the Diehm bill nor a House measure sponsored by Rep. Adam T. Bower (R-Northumberland) was backed by the administration.

"But I feel the Bower bill has less inequities in it than the Diehm bill," said the Governor.

The executive said the Legislature should pass a congressional reapportionment bill not "drafted along political lines to punish Democrats or favor Republicans."

The Diehm bill would wipe out the district of Rep. Vera Buchanan, McKeesport Democrat, and tack Republican areas onto the Democratic-held districts of Reps. Harry P. O'Neill, Scranton; James F. Lind, York; Herman P. Eberhart, Pittsburgh and Francis E. Walter, Easton.

The Governor also took the Legislature to task for failing to make a start on reapportionment of legislative and senatorial districts as required by the Constitution. The job hasn't been done since 1921. "Legislative and senatorial reapportionment are long overdue," he said. "I called that to their (the lawmakers') attention two or three times."

More than 40,000 railroad trains make trips in the United States each day.

There are more than 4,550 miles of railroad in North Carolina.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Here it is Friday morning and another look at the weekend football picture is in store. Last week this column was fortunate enough to come up with 56 correct predictions and 11 of the wrong variety, for a total thus far of 93 right and 26 wrong or a percentage of .782. However, as each week of the present campaign comes into view, the job of picking the winners and losers becomes more difficult.

It's very rare indeed when all three local teams win over the same weekend, but that's my first prediction for today. However, a guess of this type could be very wrong, especially if one of the home clubs takes the opposition the least bit lightly. Stroudsburg is my choice to down Pen Argyl tonight, while East Stroudsburg State Teachers College receives the nod over Mansfield tomorrow afternoon and East Stroudsburg High should even its mark at two-and-two against Lehighton tomorrow night.

Wilson Borough appears to be just a bit too strong for a Bangor eleven that has been in and out this season. The national scene should present Yale with a victory over Brown, while Connecticut tops Williams and William and Mary gains the nod over VML. Wichita appears too much for Bradley and the same may be said for West Virginia over Washington and Lee, Ohio University topples Western Michigan and Oklahoma A and M trips Washington State.

A flip of a coin leads me to select Washington over Southern California, while Wake Forest receives a healthy pick over Richmond and Virginia is favored over Virginia Tech and Villanova is a very timid pick over Penn State in a game to be played at Allentown tomorrow. Alabama should humble Vanderbilt, UCLA appears to be the winner over Santa Clara, Tulane rates a slight edge over Baylor and Oklahoma is another timid choice over Texas A and M.

Texas rates the nod over North Carolina, but this game could present one of the major upsets of the day. Tennessee rates the nod over Duke, with Temple being a risky choice over Rutgers and Syracuse naming the score against a Lafayette eleven that is in for a long and tiresome gridiron campaign. Southern Methodist should topple Missouri, with South Carolina downing Furman and Rochester topping Amherst, while Purdue rates the nod over Iowa.

Pennsylvania is a slim favorite over Dartmouth, while Oregon State is a safe choice over Idaho and Michigan State is a very timid pick over Ohio State in tomorrow's top game. Northwestern should trip Army, Clemson is my choice to upend North Carolina State, Princeton is another one of those uncertain choices over Navy and Georgia should topple Mississippi State. Mississippi will roll over Boston College, Stanford is my private choice over Michigan, Xavier will down Miami of Ohio, and Miami of Florida will sink Florida State.

Maryland will decision George Washington, Florida will trip Loyola and Boston University will just shade Louisville. Louisiana State is my choice over Rice, New York University should win against Kings Point and Kentucky is expected to rebound into the win column against Georgia Tech. Nebraska is the choice over Kansas State, Pittsburgh should decision Indiana, while Illinois sinks Wisconsin and Texas Tech edges Houston. Fordham will also continue its winning ways against Holy Cross.

San Jose State will nip Fresno, Notre Dame will manhandle Detroit and Denver will trip Montana. Columbia will defeat Harvard, Kansas will gain the nod over Colorado and Oregon will down the College of the Pacific, while Cornell runs up the victory flag against Colgate. Cincinnati will roll over Hawaii, California will treat Minnesota roughly and Arkansas will take the measure of Texas Christian in the final contest on the list of predictions for today.

Football will break into the headlines for keeps during the next two months, immediately after the present World Series championship is decided. There are plenty of good grid battles on the agenda and the job of picking the winners and losers will become tougher than finding a low priced piece of meat, in this day and age of high prices. However, we'll just have to trust to luck and good football teams.

Mountaineers Named To Win

By Associated Press Scribe

By Ben French
Harrisburg, (AP) — Long victory streak were few and far between yesterday in Pennsylvania schoolboy football ranks and may be even rarer after this weekend. Lower Merion is the only one of nine major teams finishing the 1950 season without a loss or tie to continue its winning ways during the first third of the new season. The suburban Philadelphia school has won 15 straight games but meets a test today against Abington. Lower Merion is favored.

However, the longest all-winning streak belongs to tiny Bell Township of Westmoreland county, a class "B" entry in the WPIAL. Bell will be shooting for its twenty-seventh victory in a row tonight against Saltsburg and should have little trouble.

Coal Township, the defending champion of the 54-team Eastern Conference, goes after its twenty-fourth game in a row without a loss when the Purple Demons hunk up against potent Sunbury. This could be the scene of an upset but the choice is the champion.

The AP schoolboy selections boosted its average up to .753 for the season by clicking last week on 31 out of 40 games.

Here's the way the top games of this weekend shape up: WPIAL class "AA" — twelve unbeaten, untied teams still are eligible to succeed Butler as titlist of this 36-team league. Six of them will be pressed tonight but all are favored to win. It's New Castle over McKeesport; Jeannette over Latrobe; Aliquippa over Rochester; Uniontown over Monongahela; Ambridge over Vandergrift; and Greensburg over Connelville.

Section Two — Two big ones beat find Meadville's Bulldogs, beaten only by non-league Farrell, favored by a touchdown over

Stroudsburg Entertains Pen Argyl Tonight

Stulgaitismen Anxious To Even Record

Stroudsburg High school returns to Gordon Giffels field to play its football tonight, with the green and white clad Pen Argyl eleven scheduled to provide the opposition under the lights. The first play of the encounter is slated to take place at 8. The Mountaineers will be attempting to improve on a mark of one victory and twice as many setbacks.

The Mountaineers lost the opener to Bangor, 6-0, then came back to down Emmaus, 12-6, only to have Palmerton, regarded by many as the power of the Lehigh Valley League, win last Saturday, 13-0.

Coach Jerry Stulgaitis will present a slightly revised lineup for tonight's encounter, in the hope that it will shake the Mountaineers into a lengthy winning streak.

To See Action

Dick Campeotto, regular right tackle, is out with a charley horse, but is expected to see some action tonight, as are such familiar figures as Al Adelman, Bill Morrison, a freshman; Benny Miller, Bill Bailey, "Brooklyn" Stevens and Dan Berman.

The Stroudsburg-Pen Argyl clash is attracting more than its usual amount of attention this year, due to the fact that the green wave defeated East Stroudsburg two weeks ago, 12-6, and the Mountaineers and Cavaliers tangle at Giffels field next Friday night.

Stroudsburg is faced with its share of minor injuries such as a charley horse to Weingartner and Shock, while Stone suffered a damaged ankle at Palmerton. Weingartner also picked up a bruised hand during a practice session this week. However, all are expected to be in tonight's starting lineup.

Sweeney Named Seattle Pilot

Seattle, (AP) — The Seattle Rainiers have signed Bill Sweeney to succeed Rogers Hornsby as baseball manager.

The Seattle Times baseball writer in New York reported a three-year contract was signed there yesterday between General Manager Earl Sheely and the erstwhile Portland skipper.

Emil Sick, owner of the Pacific Coast league team, said here this morning he had not been advised of the actual signing, but he assumed it had been done. "They were working on it last night."

Both Sheely and Sweeney are in New York for the World Series.

Sports Writer Leany Anderson said Sheely made the announcement.

Pitt Completes Drill

Pittsburgh, (AP) — The University of Pittsburgh football team wound up practice yesterday and headed for Bloomington, Ind., hoping to score the first victory of the season over the University of Indiana eleven.

Coach Tom Hamilton took 41 players for tomorrow's tilt. Pitt lost its opener to Duke University 19-14 while Indiana was crushed by a surprisingly strong Notre Dame team last week.

ESSTC Picked To Defeat Mansfield

By Ralph Bernstein

Philadelphia, (AP) — The old confidence is back. Last week's 23 right and nine wrong lifted the rather weak first try to a responsible 31-16 or .666. So, flushed with success, here is what the trusty coin has decided on this weekend's Pennsylvania football winners.

Dartmouth-Penn.—The question here is, was Penn that bad or California that good? On the premise that Coach George Munger has taught his sophomore backs how to defend against passes, here is a timid vote for Penn. This could be a tie.

Bucknell at Lehigh — This corner thinks Bucknell will lose only one game all season. This one isn't it — Bucknell.

Lafayette at Syracuse — Bring out the adding machines mother, it'll be raining touchdowns in Syracuse. Our heart goes out to "Clipper" Smith but our vote to Syracuse.

California at Indiana — A word to the wise is sufficient. This week its California.

Rutgers at Temple — tails, it's Temple.

Villanova-Penn State—Another high scoring affair in which the Wildcats from Philadelphia's Main Line twist the tail of the Nittany Lions.

Pitt at Indiana — If there is anything left of Indiana after that Notre Dame debacle, Pitt should be able to use it as a stepping stone to coach-athletic director Tom Hamilton's first Panther victory.

West Chester at Delaware — A close one in which West Chester is picked to upset Delaware.

Albright at Moravian — The Lions from Reading are too strong for Moravian.

Dickinson at Franklin and Marshall—Looks like West got help from a guy named Witmer last week. Keep it up boys and you'll make us look good picking F & M. Skipping over the chalk lines it's Swarthmore over Juniata, Scranton to name its score over PMC, Lincoln over Morgan State, Muhlenberg to get on the winning track against Lebanon Valley, East Stroudsburg over Mansfield, Allegheny to defeat Oberlin, Westminster over Thiel, Ursinus over Haverford, Bridgeport to lick Wilkes, St. Vincent over Clarion, Geneva over Grove City, Case over Washington and Jefferson, Long Island Aggies over National Aggies, Susquehanna to beat Johns Hopkins, Drexel to nose out Gettysburg, Slippery Rock over Edinboro, Millersville over Lock Haven, Carnegie Tech to whip Bethany.

Lions To Hold Tournament At Buck Hill

Buck Hill Falls—The second annual Lion's Fall Foliage Golf Tournament will be held here a week from Sunday, it was announced last night by Harry J. Drennan, chairman of the tournament.

Barrett Township walked off with the plaque donated by the same club, as the sponsoring unit of the zone tournament last year. The four lowest gross scores from any club will win the plaque and the Lion with the lowest gross total will be the zone champion.

Added Attractions

There will be a handicap tournament using the Callaway Handicap System, and a Blind Bogey tourney, in which the golfer picks his own handicap, will also be featured on the agenda. There will also be a prize for the longest drive on the eighteenth hole of the blue course.

Green fees for the tournament are listed at $3.00, which will also include entry fee for prizes.

There will be a small charge for playing nearest the hole on the second, green, white course, and one the fourteenth green.

All prizes will be awarded at Barrett Township Charter Night, Wednesday, October 31, at The Barn on the Creek Road.

Starting time for the tournament will be between noon and 2 p. m.

The tournament committee for this year's activity is made up of Mike Megargle, Al Locher, "Dutch" Caprioli and Earl Thomas, along with Drennan.

Reds, Cubs Trade

Cincinnati, (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, who have announced a "ready to trade anyone" policy, last night completed a two-for-two swap with the Chicago Cubs. They swapped catcher John Francen and outfielder Bob Usher to the Cubs for catcher Forster Burgess and outfielder Bob Bor-Kowski.

Bangor Plays Host To Wilson

Bangor—Wilson Borough, reportedly one of the strongest grid machines in the Lehigh-Northampton League, invades Memorial Park here today to stack up against Bangor High, a team with one victory and two setbacks on its 1951 slate thus far. Kickoff time is 8 p. m.

Wilson will also boast a mark of one win and two setbacks, having bowed to Easton, 33-6, and Muhlenberg Township, 13-6, before rolling over Copley last week, 54-13.

The visiting contingent will also spring ace fullback Jim Lesher into action for the first time this season. Lesher has been on the sidelines with injuries.

Three Formations

Wilson reportedly runs out of the "T", Notre Dame box and short punt formations.

In an effort to snap back into the win column several defensive changes have been made in the Bangor lineup. Leonard Castellucci will back up the line, giving his safety position to the combined talents of George Delassandro and Anthony Falcone. Don Williams and Rodney Miller will also back up the forward wall.

Stengelmen Take Defeat In Stride

By Will Grimsley

New York (AP)—The proud New York Yankees took their surprising 5-1 licking from the upstart Giants without emotion yesterday, but heaped lavish praise on two of the enemy—outfielder Monte Irvin and pitcher Dave Koslo.

It was the first opening game defeat for the World Champions in 15 years—the first since Carl Hubbell bested "Red" Ruffing, 6-1, in 1936—and it was particularly embarrassing because it was carved by a second-string member of the Giants staff.

"Koslo pitched a fine game," said wrinkled Casey Stengel, the master mind of the Yankees. "He had his fast ball and curve working good and he beat us on control. He stayed ahead of our hitters."

Not Sharp

The Yankee skipper said his own opening mound choice, Allie Reynolds, wasn't in his sharpest form. "His curve wasn't going for him and he was awfully wild," Casey said of the big righthander who pitched a no-hitter against the Boston Red Sox last Friday.

If the Yankees were distressed over losing the starter, they failed to show it.

They trooped to the dressing room with snappy steps and most of them were smiling.

"It may be a little unusual to be a game behind for us," said Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee clipper who today tied Babe Ruth's record of playing in ten of the autumn classics, "but they tell me this is a best-four-out-of-seven affair."

Yankee players said they were surprised to find the Giants had such team speed. They were particularly impressed with Irvin, the svelte Giant leftfielder from Orange, N. J., who whacked out four hits, made two spectacular catches in the outfield and stole home.

"He is quite a ball player," said Gerry Coleman, the Yankees' second baseman. "He had quite a day didn't he?"

Durocher Credits Dodgers With Aiding Giants In Initial World Series Verdict Over Yanks

New York (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, bitter baseball opponents of the New York Giants Wednesday, were credited yesterday by Manager Leo Durocher with a tremendous assist in winning the opening game of the World Series.

"Tom Sheehan and Andy High turned over their full scouting reports on the Yankees last night," said the Giant manager.

I spent two hours with them last night. The reports were the finest I had ever seen. Then I worked for an hour before the game with Wes Westrum and Dave Koslo. We knew just about everything there was to know about the Yankees. It was a wonderful piece of cooperation."

The attitude of the Giants in their luxurious dressing rooms in Yankee Stadium was that the victory over the Yankees, spectacular as it was, was an anticlimax after what happened in the final National League playoff game Wednesday. They scarcely even smiled as they trooped from their dugout under the stands.

There was a certain amount of back pounding, and a great deal of photographers' flashes, but scarcely a voice was raised.

Quiet

Koslo, the gaffly little pitcher who subdued the Yankee bats so effectively, looked worn out.

"It was my sinkers, low and away, that were most effective," he said. "In the first couple of innings I had trouble with the wind (it was blowing in from center field).

"It made my curve ball hang in the air."

Monte Irvin, the quiet Negro leftfielder who had such a stellar day, said that Manager Durocher told him he could try to steal home if he thought he could get a good jump.

"He told me I was on my own," he said, and expressed surprise when informed it was the first time anyone had stolen home in the World Series since 1921.

"I was about 15 feet off the bag. I thought Allie Reynolds was taking a little too much time in his windup. The only way a slow man like me can steal home is to get a good jump." As for robbing "Hank" Bauer of a home run with a leaping catch against the left field fence, Irvin remarked "what I should have done was run back to the fence and turn around."

"Reynolds was real fast today," said Irvin of the Yankee pitcher he belted so freely. Irvin's four hits tied a series record for hits in a single game.

It was Irvin's day in the field and on the bases and at the plate, and Koslo's day on the mound, and you thought of what Durocher had said one day near the end of the stretch drive.

"Irvin is the one," he said positively. "He's the one who has been coming through with that hit when we needed it, or a sensational catch, or throw."

And last night the fans who were so sure that the Yankees would walk away with the Series, because they almost traditionally do and because they were a well-fed, well-rested, confident crew compared with their astonishing opponents, weren't so sure.

Ford Hanover Sets Trot Mark

Lexington, Ky. (AP)—Undeclared Ford Hanover captured the rich Kentucky Futurity in straight heats and set a new season's record yesterday to put his claim on the three year old trotting title.

The classy bay son of his Excellency-Freda Hanover got his record of 2:01 2-5 in the last dash. It was one-fifth of a second faster than his first trip which equalled the 2:01 3-5 established by Yankee Hanover in a 20 class trot earlier yesterday.

Close Duel

Ford Hanover went out and took the first heat like it was just so much exercise but he had to hustle all the way to grab the second from Scotch Rhythm, Leo C. McNamara's determined filly who duelled with him most of the route.

Candy Man, an outsider, finished second and third to take second in the summary, and Scotch Rhythm was third with finishes of fourth and second.

Business News In Monroe Area

Approximately 74 percent of the families in Pennsylvania now have telephone service, as compared to 43 percent in 1940, Henry T. Inman, vice president and general manager of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, said Wednesday night in speaking at the annual "get-together" of local telephone employees in the Masonic temple, Scranton.

"We have accomplished an almost unbelievable job in providing service to nearly a million people in Pennsylvania since the end of World War Two, spending between two and three hundred million dollars for new plant to do the job," he said.

Delay in installing service "is not due to any lack of planning or industry on the company's part, for we have spent every dollar and put into service every piece of plant and equipment we could get our hands on," he added, pointing out that requests for new telephone service are "unprecedented."

"The demand for local service is now at a rate about 14 percent higher than last year and the highest since 1946, but we are not able to get the materials we need, particularly copper and steel, to clear up the delayed orders and keep up with the increased demand for our service," he said.

"We are still going at a terrific rate. In 1950, our construction program was $60,000,000; this year will amount to $68,000,000 and if we can get any more plant and equipment and our earnings are sufficient to attract more capital money, the 1952 program will be even greater."

E. R. Irvin, district traffic superintendent, was chairman of the meeting.

Earnings after all charges accruing to the common stock of Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. for the 12 months period ended August 31, 1951 were $8,929,213, equivalent to $2.35 per share of common stock outstanding at such date.

Operating revenues for the first eight months ending August 31, were $55,507,853, an increase of 8.8 percent over last year's corresponding period.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 5. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
